This is unbelievable! Why do you think that giving Microsoft even more opportunity to undermine their competitors is a good thing? You are giving Microsoft a blanket license to increase their presence in our nation's schools for years to come while at the same time shutting out their competitors. This is a sweet deal for Microsoft and a kick in the butt for Apple.

Why not give the schools the money earmarked for technology and let them decide how to best spend it?

Please reconsider this action!

Sincerely,

Mary Jo DeMorrow
